Arginine vasopressin during acute and chronic isolation and confinement stress. Plasma vasopressin and ACTH concentrations were measured in adult male rats subjected to acute (2, 7, and 14 days) and chronic (14 days) stress caused by isolation and confinement. Plasma vasopressin was elevated in rats subjected to chronic isolation for 7 or 14 days, as compared to the normal controls and rats subjected to acute isolation for 2 days. Acute isolation for 2 days also induced an increase in plasma vasopressin, but this change was transient. Plasma ACTH was increased by acute isolation, and decreased by chronic isolation..” Ellison said he was “astounded” to hear the word “ugly” used to describe his client, saying the accusations are “false” and “irrelevant” to the case, which alleges criminal activity occurred at the home. “I’m ready for my client to be exonerated,” he said. The latest case focuses on whether the sheriff’s office gave favorable treatment to homeowner Daniel Dortch, who is accused of assaulting and nearly killing his roommate Michael

Gutierrez in October 2012. In the trial that began Monday, Dortch's attorneys were able to cast doubt on that version of events and force one of the officers involved in the case to testify in front of a jury. Prosecutors allege Dortch knocked out his roommate with a baseball bat before leaving the house, and that he was not arrested until a week later when his roommate broke into a car Dortch owns and drove it to a local tire shop. Dortch was arrested and charged with aggravated battery and aggravated assault in December 2012. Gutierrez testified at trial that Dortch knocked him out and then fled the scene with a bat, leaving him to bleed on the ground. Gutierrez then testified that he repeatedly told authorities that his attacker left the scene in Dortch's silver car, a detail that was not previously known to authorities. Dortch
